

The "Get Well" Project

The "Get Well" Project is NJOE.com's effort to send author Aaron Allston our well-wishes during his recovery from a recent heart attack and resulting surgery. For all of us that have enjoyed his books, this is an opportunity to say thank you and hope for a speedy recovery in a unique way.

Below is the approved box for your message. You can write anything you want in there – tell a story, draw a picture, write a joke, or simply just include a quick message. Be advised that all submissions for the "Get Well" project will be previewed before being sent to Mr. Allston. The only thing we require of your message is that you put a name (it can be first name, full name, nickname, forum name, but somehow identify yourself) and also fill in a location (could be country, state, town – be as specific as you want, but we want to demonstrate the far reaches that people are sending messages).
